

LEADLAB GROWTH SERIES

Registration Information

1. Program Overview

The LeadLab Growth Series is a transformational leadership development journey designed to equip leaders to grow personally, lead relationally, strengthen organizations, and multiply mission impact. Through interactive workshops, peer coaching, reflective learning, strategic planning, and mentoring, participants develop a deeper sense of leadership identity, purpose, and calling while building practical skills in communication, emotional intelligence, innovation, organizational leadership, and mission-focused growth. Structured around four core modules, Leading Self, Leading with Others, Leading in Organizations, and Leading Mission Multiplication, the program fosters personal transformation, collaborative learning, organizational effectiveness, and sustainable leadership development.

2. Program Structure and Learning Experience

The LeadLab Growth Series extends over a minimum of 42 weeks and is intentionally designed as a highly engaging, immersive, and application-oriented learning experience. Participants begin with a three-day face-to-face Launching Retreat, followed by 24 weekly leadership learning sessions (1.5 hours) and 40 weeks of Leadership Learning Group meetings (1 hour each), creating consistent opportunities for reflection, accountability, peer coaching, practical application, and collaborative learning. The experience concludes with a three-day face-to-face LeadLab Forward Retreat, where participants celebrate growth, strengthen leadership commitments, and prepare for continued service and impact.

3. Leadership Project and Expected Investment

As a capstone to the program, participants will design, implement, and present a Personal Leadership Project, demonstrating their leadership development and the practical application of LeadLab principles within their ministry, institution, or organization. The Southern Asia-Pacific Division (SSD) is making a significant investment in leadership development by substantially subsidizing the cost of the program. Participating organizations are responsible for a registration fee of USD 300 per participant, as well as applicable travel, accommodation, technology, and project-related expenses associated with participation in the program. This investment should be viewed as a strategic contribution toward developing leaders who can strengthen organizations and expand mission impact.

4. Participant Commitment and Completion Agreement

By registering for LeadLab, participants acknowledge the value of SSD's investment and commit to fulfilling all program requirements, including attendance at retreats and learning sessions, active participation in Leadership Learning Groups, completion of assigned learning activities, and successful implementation and presentation of their Personal Leadership Project. Registration constitutes a commitment to complete the entire LeadLab journey. Participants who withdraw, fail to meet attendance or participation expectations, or do not successfully complete the program requirements may be required to reimburse the Southern Asia-Pacific Division for a portion of the subsidized training investment through a non-completion penalty of USD 700. By enrolling, participants affirm their commitment to engage fully in the program with diligence, professionalism, integrity, and excellence while maximizing the opportunity to strengthen their leadership capacity and mission impact.
